THE BOARD OF ARBITRATION.

A meeting will be held to-morrow by the State Board of Arbitration. What the result will be cannot now be told. But it must certainly consider the question of an investigation. Knowing its powers and perceiving the results of such an investigation if would not be strange if the Board decided to exercise its right of sifting thoroughly the reasons leading to the dismissal of employees on the Central.

If they should do nothing the strikers will have one more disappointment to contend with. This much must be said to the credit of the men who struck: That they have maintained an orderly spirit in their strike, and in the face of much that was irritating have not lost their patience nor thrown away sobriety.

This is one of the most praiseworthy qualities they could have manifested. Bad measures to enforce a right are a poor remedy of a wrong. Public sympathy could not be accorded to violence or revolutionary heat But the conduct of the strikers has been such as to commend them, and to suggestithat they who stand so firmly, patiently and courageously for a point are defending legitimately a right.

INVENTIVE MR. BEATTIE.

Whatever may be felt about the Commissioner of the Street-Cleaning Department for not cleaning the streets, he arouses a certain degree of kindly interest by his festive inventiveness in the matter of experiments.

It was the fertility of Mr. BEATTIE'S street-cleaning mind which suggested to him the idea of flushing the dirty ways with an old fire-engine. But a rival do partment stepped in with a protest and his fire-engine was rudely snatched from

This was dispiriting, of course. But the Commissioner is of a cheerful temperament, and he has ralified. Now he will enlist another element, the pure, etherial one of fire. He contemplates a combustion of the garlage.

If the Commissioner succeeds in dismissing the offal of the town to the upper air in deodorized puffs everybody will be grateful. They who walk the streets will matter, and they who stray where ocean breaks upon the shingle will not have their exhibitation tamed by the sight of unseemly refuse borne in upon the created wave.

Give Mr. BEATTIE his head, and what ever becomes of the streets the fantastic inventiveness of his teeming fancy will afford the citizens a cheering spectacle.

THE DYNAMITER.

Dr. Justin is the inventor of a dynamite hombshell which will not explode until it strikes some object. At least, that is Dr. Justin's conception of the thing, though experiments do not bear out this view as thoroughly as might be desired.

In the first experiment some mouths ago the gun was blown to finders. In a second trial yesterday a twelve-ton gun was reduced to a little shower of iron pastules. Of course this illustrates the explosive force of a dynamite shell, but that was sufficiently demonstrated before. That such a shell can be thrown from a gun with safety to the gun, and, incidentally to the bystanders, yet remains to be provad.

It would be awfully disconcerting to a little band of gunners, whose eyes are fixed with feverish interest on some ditant object which is to be pulverized to have the gun suddenly distributed among themselves. This is worse than

"kicking." It Dr. Justin's dynamite shell cannot be secured against this rash baste in exploding it is not such a blessed auxiliary to warfare as he promises, not at least for the side which employs it. The Doctor will have to brace it up, or give up the gun.

If he were drugged, he is not, of course, in the same box as if he paralyzed himself with drink before the race. But a man does not like to think he is chancing his money on a jockey's thirst, and no matter how good the jockey's qualities as a rider may be such conduct is not to be tolerated. OLD HUTCH WON THE WAGER.

An Incident of the Younger Days of the Great Speculator. The dazzling career of B. Peters Hutchinson is said to have been foreshadowed by many clever schemes in his younger days in the shape of small bets, one of which, called to mind by an old acquaintance, graphically demonstrates the nat-urally shrewd nature of the famous pork and grain operator, says the Chicago Young Mr. Hutchinson, some twentyodd years ago, was walking down State street in company with the acquaintance, or rather friend, alluded to, when his foot came in contact with a cobblestone fairly balanced on the edge of the side walk.

With an energetic kick Mr. Hutchinson the Hotel Porter's Calls. The following story is declared to be true by Paul Gores, of the Grand Pacific the clerk replied.

"Yes, he's busy in the printing office," the clerk replied.

"Well, I want to see him." said the Hotel, who tells it says the Chicago Post: "It was one morning last week," he says, "during my watch when a country-man, nearly dressed and bright looking, but with a smell of new mown hay about him, came into the rotunds and sat down over there by the fountain. It was about the time the eastern trains leave, and as John called out the names of the various reads, that departing mests lounging ads, that departing guests lonuging bout might have werning, the country man gazed inquiringly around him as if expecting something.

After John had given several calls the countryman got up, peered into every door that opens into the rotunds, went into the barroom, peked his head into one one of the private rooms and then came up to me and said:

"Mister, say, I have heered that man

The possibilities of forming a stage acquaintance with a writer who has given forth such delightful books as "Three Men in a Boat," Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow" and "Starciand" was something worth auticipating. Jeroms K. Jerome had a very large and attentive andience last night, and his play "The Maister of We barrow" was presented under the most fa-vorable conditions. I believe that the comedy was called "Woodbarrow Farm" in London, but I suppose that title would have
